

TLC STUDENT OF THE MONTH

Each month TLC will select a student who has benefitted from our services. Our March student is Sam Poulos.

Sam Poulos is an Engineering Technology student who plans to complete a degree in Building Construction Management at Clemson University. Sam chose SCC because it offered a flexible course schedule, allowing him to manage work and school. Sam currently works for a construction company in York, SC.

Sam lives on a farm in Chester, SC. A well-rounded man with varied interests in addition to his work and school activities, he is an Eagle Scout, enjoys hunting and fishing, and restores old cars!

Sam spotted TLC right away, across the hall from his advisor's office, and knew it would become an essential part of his college experience. Little did he know that he sometimes would spend three-to-four-hour stretches in TLC's help-centered environment! Sam credits TLC as a life saver where he has received help, encouragement, and guidance from the always-welcoming staff. He feels more confident about his classes because he knows the TLC tutors will provide him the academic advice he needs.

Sam suggests that all students take advantage of TLC services, where the staff has never gotten tired of seeing his face or answering his questions!

Please join us in encouraging Sam Poulos, our March "Student of the Month."

March 2010

